AMUSEMENTS

Butler Theater

An excellent program will be shown at the Butler theater this afternoon and evening, as follows: "Jane Seymour and Henry VIII," a Pathe drama; "His Vacation," Lubin; "Wanted, a Sister," Vitagraph, a college comedy revolving around a clever female impersonation; "The Double Cross," a Selig romance of old Colorado where Bernard Judd, a young prospector, strikes gold among the Colorado foothills. He stakes out his mine and draws a map of it. This he sends to his sweetheart, Sara Severn, who lives in New York City. At the same time he writes her that he will join her inside of a week. His partner, Luer, whose lust for gold has made him treacherous, learns of Judd's plans, and decides to double-cross him. He intercepts Judd's letter and rushes to New York, where he persuades Sara to accompany him back to Colorado, by telling her that Judd is dangerously ill. They pass Judd on the way west. Judd, arriving in New York, and hearing of his partner's dastardly trick, returns at once to Colorado. Luer, knowing that Sara has the mine map on her person, wait until they arrive at Judd's camp before he tells of his intentions in bringing her there. She manages to break away from him and takes refuge in the gorge nearby. Judd arrives upon the scene just in time to save his mine and settle matters with Luer.

MOOSE LODGE ATTENDS SERVICES AT ST. MARKS

Last evening a big herd of Moose could be seen on the trail towards St. Marks church for a special service arranged for them by the Rev. George Gallup, prelate of the order. The officers wore their regalia and presented a dignified appearance at the church.

The singing was led by a large chorus choir, whose work showed evidence of careful training. After the litany had been chanted and an anthem had been beautifully rendered by the choir, a fine solo was given by Mr. Boak, and instrumental solos by Mr. Amigo and Prof. Smith. A superb duet was also presented by Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Lawry. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Alber, the organist of the church, in his inimitable manner.

The rector preached an eloquent and forceful sermon on the mission of fraternal orders, dwelling especially on their influence upon the members themselves and upon their power of forming public opinion in the community. The services closed with a benediction.
